"Even Angels Fall"

You said good bye you turned the key and left a picture, for one more last scene I did my best to do my best but i saw the clouds circle all around embracing something in our souls. perhaps you're really here with me?

The answers never crossed my mind let alone the questions though they were a part of me we did our best to make ends meet then came the rain and parted seas between us uprooting everything. the moon is the only light we see

I never told you i was able to lay a hand upon your cheek
I always promised you an angel, i only wanted you to see that even angels fall

The morning sun now holds the key oh, and the picture that I'd once held close you'd think that time could heal the sting, dear then came the rain connecting seas between and healing everything, I almost called out your name
