The hall was dark,
No one would ever know.
Late afternoon, the plot unwinds.
The trigger pulled, another life let go.
The victim just a boy of nine.

Children close the door and hide away.
Building the walls that hide away the pain,
When their tears are dried.

It's cold outside.
There's a place she goes,
To pull her trick for a spot of wine.
And for a price she'll keep him warm.
She knows she'll have to show his friends
A real good time.

Children close the door and hide away.
Building the walls that hide away the pain,
When their tears are dried.

(Where do we go from here?)
Can you tell me will they survive?
(Our future is so unclear)
All in our lives.
(Where do we stand when there's no peace at hand?)
Can you tell me will they survive?
(All of this in our lives)
All in our lives.

There is a light around you,
It is your life.
