So you left the home you never had
On your own, how could things get so bad?
And you hitched a ride to the unknown
Forgot your address and your mobile phone

Would they all remember me
And forget about their needs?

There?s nobody putting you down
You're just spending your life hanging around
No, there?s nobody putting you down
But you're dragging your life on the ground

And you said some things you didn?t mean
A lot of what you thought wasn?t half that it seemed
So you hitched a ride to the unknown
Forgot your address and your mobile phone

And as you get older
The chip on your shoulder
Spreading like a disease

Well, there?s nobody putting you down
You're just spending your life hanging around
No, there?s nobody putting you down
But you're dragging your life on the ground

Spending your life, hanging around
There?s nobody putting you down

So you left the home you never had
On your own, how could things get so bad?
Hitched a ride to the unknown
Forgot your address and your mobile phone

Would they all remember me
And forget about their needs?
Would they all remember me
And forget about their needs?

There?s nobody putting you down
You're just spending your life hanging around

No, there?s nobody putting you down
But you?re dragging your life on the ground

No, there?s nobody putting you down
You're just spending your life hanging around
No, there?s nobody putting you down
But you?re dragging your life on the ground
