

Stewart Rod

"Stone Cold Sober"

Visit "Stone Cold Sober" on MotoLyrics.com

Never get to bed before sunup, always get caught in the rain;
sometimes I might get in trouble,
never was one to complain.
Now gentleman, you must agree ain't it worth it when you're out on cloud thirty-three to be stone cold sober again,
down in the alley again,
stone cold sober again.

Never found a dime in a gutter, always get my best friends drunk.
If the pres'dent tries to call me, say " Rodney, come on over for lunch"; I'd say, " Gentlemen, excuse me please but I'm busy with my buddies up on cloud thirty-three."
Yeah, stone cold sober again,
down in the alley again,
stone cold sober again.

Sunday is a drag, so forget it,
Monday you can make up for that;
Tuesday, take a taste for dinner,
if you're all right spend it in bed.
But on Thursday prepare for your weekend and let Friday disappear into Saturday mornin' when you're stone cold sober again,
down in the alley again,
stone cold sober again.
stone cold sober again,
down in the alley again,
stone cold sober again.

I don't mind stone cold sober again,
down in the alley again,
stone cold sober again. [fade out]

Visit Stewart Rod page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.

