"Calling"

You and me
I always thought it would be forever
You and me
We used to laugh everyday together

And in the wake of a moment
It slips away...
And in a wake of this mourning

Calling for you, I know you can hear me call Between fires and broken walls
Brother hear me now

Mother please don't cry
You know that he never wanted...
Father please don't sigh
You know that he always hated

Sad faces on one another
Won't heal the hurt
But in the wake of this mourning

Won't you hear me now?

Remembering the days when we would run out on top of ground
Birthday cakes and belly aches from laughing without sound
Twenty three you take from me
You make me bleed
Don't make believe that I can fly
No need to try, can we survive
Can we survive?
