I built a ship with my own hands to take us to the moon
I took a pen in my own hand and wrote you a hundred tunes

Now I'm crazy for you but not that crazy
I'm crazy for you but not that crazy

I pretended you were, Jesus, you were just dying to save me

I stood beneath your window with my ukulele
I made my yard a playground just in case we had a baby

Now I'm crazy for you but not that crazy
I'm crazy for you but not that crazy

I treated you like radium, I treated you like God You were my glass menagerie, did you not find that odd?

I dwelt within and went without and broke my virgin flesh

I performed acts of devotion as if you were Ganesh
But now I'm crazy for you but not that crazy
I'm crazy for you but not that crazy
