The pages burn, the babies scream
And lovers text in Japanese
The more you give, the more they need
The more you live, the less you see

Religion breeds like a disease
More people spit on refugees
(can't get in with immigration)
The more you live, the less you see
The more you give, the more they need
In this brave new century

So mother where do I belong?
And mother what should I believe?
Look what happened to your son in this brave new century
We sit and choke on magazines
And worship shit celebrities
Lives exposed in publications?

The more you give, the more they need
The more you live, the less you see
In this brave new century
