I'm a walker, baby
Walking's what I do
Walked out every time, from every place
On every one except for you
Yeah, walker, mama
And I hate them long goodbyes
That hold you hostage
When you just can't say
What wouldn't come as no surprise

I don't live in fear
When my phobias appear
I pull up my stakes and run away
Don't know if that's good
Don't know if I should
I just always thought it kept me safe

Chorus:
But through your eyes
I see a side of me
That's coming home
And glad to be Expected here
Through your eyes
I can see the silver twine
That ties your life to mine
I see it clear
Through your eyes

I'm a walker, baby
Get those walkin' blues
Jerk awake from some old ache
And grope around me for my walkin' shoes

Got a walkin' fever
Even in my secret thoughts
Set 'em up and leave 'em
Some one else can disconnect the dots

Domesticity
Don't do a thing for me

You can park my guitar by the door
Find a line of gold
Down the middle of the road
And follow just to find out what's in store

Repeat Chorus:

I'm a walker, baby
Can't stay in one place
But no matter where I roam
I'm walkin' home
Under a vision of your face€.
