I woke up in bed last night when something came upon me
I was not lying there alone but Ive never felt so lonely Somethings come between us, girl feels like weve hit a wall
How can I know just how you feel when we dont touch at all
This no communication thing is quickly growing old This isolation booth Im in is dark and turning cold
I used to steal your breath away with just one little kiss Me and you, we were so in love back then but thats not how it is

But Id catch moonlight in a bottle if we could drink a toast to happiness
Fill my pickup bed with roses and back it right up to your door
Id write your name in candy kisses from here to Carolina
If you change your mind and love me like before but thats not how it is

I have tossed and turned and rolled it over in my mind Not knowing all the questions make the answers hard to find I think Ive covered everything but still theres something that Ive missed
I used to read you baby like a book but thats not how it is

But Id catch moonlight in a bottle if we could drink a
toast to happiness
Fill my pickup bed with roses and back it right up to
your door
Id write your name in candy kisses from here to Carolina
If you change your mind and love me like before but
thats not how it is

Id write your name in candy kisses from here to Carolina

If you change your mind and love me like before but
thats not how it is Thats not how it is Thats not how it is
