i found my author
over the water
we don't need no other
i exclaimed
why bother!
and i refrained
and i turned my my back to the wind to keep my light burning i spend the night awake tossing and turning
all these thoughts inside my brain till one thing was certain when it all ends
the raining curtains
so i made my offer laid my self on the altar without my mother or father i am orphaned and no friend offends often lest his shell soften and in this hell i, ben, haunt in this son keeps burning and i spend my days awake coughin' and cursin'
still one thing is certain
there'll be no hurtin'
