Just another lucky day
Coming out with the morning sun
I'm on the run to find the things I'm looking for
The face in the mirror
Does look like me
This is the time I try to break free
So many miles that I left behind but you're still on my mind

Sometimes I try
To break down every wall
Sometimes I'm lost with myself
Waiting for some one to keep me warm
You're on my mind everywhere I go
How can I tell you what I feel for you

I feel my memories are floating back
Falling like rain
I can't control my feet
They're doing steps on the door, I should run to you
But my feelings are too strong to hold back
Where are you now tell me where did you go

I should run to you
I should run to you
I should run to you
I should run to you

I see the people rush home
I hear their laughter all around
A face in the middle of the crowd slowly but surely losing ground
All that I need is a smile that will last
It comes through to me through the walls of the past

I should run to you
I should run to you
I should run to you
I should run to you

I feel my memories are floating back
Falling like rain

I can't control my feet
They're doing steps to the door, I should run to you
But my feelings are too strong to hold back
Where are you now tell me where did you go
