Tomorrow is gonna make you cry
It's gonna to make you kneel
Before it breaks you from inside
Still pressing on, arm over arm

Still trying to get both feet back onto the ground
They are harvesting these fields in autumn
We're different now than when we started

I am ready to wake up there in the exodus
On the beautiful side of somewhere baby

There on the pavements underneath the yellow moon
I think of you and just how easily we bruise
The folded address in my pocket I have stuffed Trying to believe for you that the bottom didn't drop

I am on the platform covered with dust
I pray they take the both of us

I am ready to wake up there in the exodus
On the beautiful side of somewhere baby

I am ready to come down to see us both somehow
On the beautiful side of somewhere someday

Somewhere, someday

I am lighting matches for the rescue
Some are candles, some are fuses
Acting on my best behavior
Switching over every breaker

As we're plowing through these laws of nature
Disregarding every acre, I'm lying in my Sunday best Assuming this was not a test, and

I am ready to wake up there in the exodus
On the beautiful side of somewhere, baby

And I am ready to come down and see us both somehow

On the beautiful side of somewhere, someday

Somewhere, someday

Beautiful side of somewhere
