i stand in my shadow another day because you said that i was all wrong turned up, flipped upside down i don't even know what's going on take me down to the riverside throw me in because i'm insane between living and forgetting i don't even remember my name boy why won't you follow me i won't set you free boy why can't you see its just a difference of degree i can't forgive you for all those things they call indiscretions seems you can't admit them but i don't want any of em for myself you feel better now if you forget em they'll go away you try to lie them down but all they do is lay so i stand in my shadow another day because you said that i was all wrong now i don't hear a word you say that demeaning voice is gone boy why won't you follow me i won't set you free boy why can't you see its just a difference of degree and i'm so sick of it oh congratulations for picking me up just throwing me on the floor and oh congratulations for giving me all you had to nothing more and oh congratulations for taking it all and blaming it on me and oh congratulations i'm everything you inspired me to be so melt away so softly reinforcement feeling so hollow i try to break it off me but your sympathy is so sour to swallow everything turns to apathy and in front of me is distancing and if i win i lose as the knot ties truth is not necessarily not lies it all depends on where the thought lies if i strive and die was i not wise you say hesitate to agitate you wear that smile like you're a saint say let everything lay where it lay but its not ok no its not ok
