The brighter story by Jasper Erkens
What is passed is now gone
Another day will come
I know I am the one to blame
But you will find your way

Hearts have no bones
Still they can break, I'm sorry I broke yours feelings fade away
What more is there to say

Could it be, could it be, that there is a story
That will turn out just fine
And one day you will see, the brighter story
If you open your eyes

Remember when we were young
We wrote our names in trees,
And I wrote you songs
You said love is just a hoax
And you touched me as you spoke

Could it be, could it be, that there is a story
That will turn out just fine
And one day you will see the brighter story
If you open your eyes

Could it be, could it be, that there is a story
That will turn out just fine
And one day you will see the brighter story
If you open your eyes
