Two miles high and I cant look down took a long ride in through an unfamiliar town but I stretched my arms and I welcomed the fight took a hard grip on the wheel and drove through the night it's so hard to guess what's ahead Listen to your heart, it'll show you the way Listen to your heart, it wont stall or fray Listen to your heart, wake up to the day Listen to you heart I can remember when I was just a boy crying over lost or broken replaceable toys as I grew up fast I let some things pass me by missed a beautiful day or two I watched some good people die it's so hard to know what's ahead I'm waking up to watch the sunrise like I never saw it before and I'm paying more attention to the bright blueness of the sky.
