Television flickers all thru my nights
 Bathing me in its omniscient light
 Smothering my brain in its icy drone
 It shows me things that I've never known
 Beauty queens dance before my eyes
 While teenage whores offer their surprise
 An endless parade of decadence and sin
 Transfixed I smile a hungry grin
 Out in the night, out in the rain
 There is no love, there is no pain
 Only dark skeletons flow in my sight
 Only my wraith walks on my right
 Sometimes a young girl strays too near
 With pretty eyes filled with sex and fear
 She'll walk with me and make no sound
 While brilliant blood flows to the ground
 Television flickers on thru my nights
 BUrying me in its omniscient light
 Shrouding my brain in cold blue mist
 It shows me things that can't exist
 Everything around me seems so cold
 There are no memories for me to hold
 I feel only ice forming in my head
 I close my eyes and turn to red
