There's a light on in the kitchen
Where I've been losin' sleep
It seems to me since you've been gone
The dark got twice as deep

My mind tries to forget you,
But my heart comes back for more
'Cause you put the hurt on me
Like I never felt before

Don't need a guilty conscience
To follow me around
Don't need no one to tell me why
The rain keeps pourin' down

Don't need another dark cloud
Hangin round outside my door
'Cause you put the hurt on me,
Like I never felt before
The flames have turned to ashes
But there's still some embers left
Missin' you is harder than
This whiskey on my breath

I never had a memory cut
A path as wide as yours
'Cause you put the hurt on me,
Like I never felt before

The flames have turned to ashes
But there's still some embers left
Missin' you is harder than
This whiskey on my breath

I never had a memory cut
A path as wide as yours
'Cause you put the hurt on me,
Like I never felt before

You put the hurt on me,
Like I never felt before
