"Closing In"

It's been more than a year now
Time measured in the hours between the seconds you felt something There's been too many days of trying
But did you try enough?
Because at the end of the day all those words you meant to say Still were _____??
As the sky paints your world in just one color
It doesn't make things lighter
It doesn't make time go faster either It's been more than a year of falling in and out of routine
Sleepless nights with always the same image displayed between a face and a bedroom wall
Motion turns to stills
A city lacking speed
The surroundings falling asleep it seems
And as the sun sets at three in the afternoon you can tell that next year is closing in That the things you did and didn't do What you said and didn't say
They will soon be nothing
Last year's highs and lows People's whose names you can't remember but with familiar faces
And how your loved ones traded places & soon that's nothing, nothing but last year's highs and lows
Motion turns to stills
A city lacking speed
The surroundings falling asleep it seems
And as the sun sets at three in the afternoon
you can tell that next year is closing in
