An Arrow From The Sun

[Lyrics by Thomas Karlsson]

[Music by Christofer Johnsson]

[Solo soprano:]

Sunshine hides behind a cloud

[Bass/Tenor:]

Eiwar!

[Solo soprano:]

There's no light for us to see

[Bass/Tenor:]

Eiwar!

[Solo soprano:]

But a ray is breaking through

[Bass/Tenor:]

Eiwar!

[Solo soprano:]

The ignorance of human mind

[Bass/Tenor:]

Eiwar!

On Olympia the sun is born

Radiating from god Apollo

From the utmost North arrived a mankind

And he took a spark, a shaft of light

Arrows from the sun, they penetrate the human mind

Sophia is born when we catch one of these

Arrows from the sun, they burn the soul and make us see

Him who took the spark: Abaris Eiwar

Eiwar, Eiwar, take an arrow from the sun

Abaris, pilgrim from the regions of darkness

when you catch the sun, you'll ride a beam

All across the world, in every place

Like Abaris did, he took the spark

As a riding broom; a magic world

Arrows from the sun will penetrate the human mind Sophia is born when we catch on of these Arrows from the sun, they burn the soul and make us
see
Deep inside the maze: the Psyche, the soul

An arrow from the sun is like a sceptre in your hand
A key to time and space, to journeys within Arrows from the sun will open up your beating heart
Sophia will shine when they hit your soul

Eiwar, Eiwar, take an arrow from the sun
Abaris, pilgrim from the regions of darkness
Eiwar, Eiwar, bend the bow now and shoot now
Abaris, bowman, shoot an arrow from the sun
