[According to the Roman storyteller Jordanes, the Gothic Tribes gathered under the flag of their leader Berik. From their Motherland up in the North they sailed away with three ships to invade the Christian Rome like pagan crusaders. The crew on the three ships were ancestors of three legendary Gothic tribes called Ostrogoths, Visigoths and Gepids. The Christian Rome empire feared the Goths and monks identified the Goths with Gog, a heathen chief mentioned in the Bible. The Gothic king Theoderik founded his kingdom in Italy year 488 CE. Although the aristocracy of Italy and Spain often claimed their heritage back to the Goth the word Gothic was later associated with darkness and paganism. The Gothic god was Wotan or -Odin and his spear inspired fear and terror. During the Romanticism the Gothic art was revalued and became synonymous with art and inspiration. The renaissance of the Gothic spirit has made the three ships of Berik sail once again.]

Leitmotif of the Gothic Army

Jordanes told us the story.

Yes, of Berik!

[Berik, the Gothic King:]

ÄfÄçâ, -Ä...Ä¾ Gather all the Ostrogoths

And Visigoths!

Ride like an arctic storm

Across the world! ÄfÄçâ, -Ä..."

Leitmotif of the Gothic Army

Gather all the Gothic tribes, all the sons of Berik

On three ships you sail away on a pagan crusade

Tyrants of the Christian world fear you more than their

God

Theoderik, Gothic King: ÄfÄçâ, -Ä...Ä¾ Gog iste gothus est ÄfÄçâ, -Ä..."

The flashing spear of the sublime
Is flying in the air
Like the fear of the divine
The goths are everywhere
