Sometimes the wind blows harder than you think your house can stand
You've never faced this kind of storm before
And you thought because you built upon the rock and not the sand
The house would not be threatened anymore
But in every life there is pain
And even though I cannot stop the rain
I'll be praying you through the storm
Praying you through the storm
And I'll be interceding for whatever you're needing
Praying, I'll be praying you through the storm
I know you'll make it through this even though you can't see how
But maybe it's not meant for you to know
Tomorrow you'll look back at the storm that's raging now
And there won't be any strong winds left to blow
So please know in your heart it will end
Because I'm making you this promise my friend
I'll be praying you through the storm
Praying you through the storm
And I'll be interceding for whatever you're needing
Praying, I'll be praying you through the storm
I'll be praying you through the storm
Praying you through the storm
And I'll be interceding for whatever you're needing Praying, I'll be praying
Praying, I'll be praying you through the storm
