"Rather Let You Go"

"something's missing," you said and you never said what but i knew all the same and though you'd share nearly anything you never told me why you were ashamed you'd claim you were lost but i saw you quite clearly through your eyes that were my view i felt the same and you saw me your reflection a little bit skewed my wheels kicked up the demon dust i gotta let go all over again my movement caused a backward fall i'm reliving every word you said i'll have you know i'd rather let you go

i remember when i slipped i remember when you wept i remember when you were running from yourself i remember you said i'd not be alone but i don't remember your words when you left
