

Those Mockingbirds

"The Difference Between Love And Addiction"

Visit "The Difference Between Love And Addiction" on MotoLyrics.com

I've been feeling like a prison cell
Holding on to my youth
Like a streetlight at a festival
You can shine so bright but the world still can't see you

It's simple, you're so simple
And I've only got two arms to hold you
But it's simple, you're so simple
And I've got a lot of time to show you

I've been feeding on old vegetables
They don't taste ripe, but they'll do
You're a quota I don't wanna fill
And now you're armed to teeth now for times when I talk to you

I'm on, I'm on I'm on to you

Simple, you're so simple
And I've only got two arms to hold you
But it's simple, you're so simple
And I've got a lot of time to show you

Everyone we know has moved away from here
Honesty found a home
In your head you made me disappear
But you know, it could grow, ya know?

My nose broke off from all those lies I told
So for once, here's the truth
There are canyons in-between us now
And I hope that the drop to the bottom has quite the view

It's simple, you're so simple
And I've only got two arms to hold you
But it's simple, you're so simple
And I've got a lot of time to show you

