she watched the water, glimmering in the sun.

she watched the birds, flying through the sky.

she watched the kids, playing in the field.

she watched the dog, catching the frisbee.

she watched her friends, laugh and smile.

she watched her cat, jump on the window sill.

she watched her clock, ticking every second.

she watched her reflection, grim and select.

she watched the fish, swimming in the tank.

she watched the smoke, come out of the chimney.

she watched the wind, destroy the peace.

she watched the fan, going round and round.

she watched her destiny... lost, now found
