you can throw away your expectations now and all the things you wouldn't say out loud there is nothing left to pick apart now the cards are all down and now you know the sound of my heart when it hits the paper there's no more mystery here
this is the last song

i remember when we first became a band we'd drive all night and talk about the world i remember when we used to now and then just sit and wonder where it all would go this is the last song, the last song so everybody sing along this is the last sooo-oong (x2)

there's no more mystery here

we'd set up in the bedroom practice all night long i remember when we use to now and then keep the neighborhood up from the sound of our guitars
i remember when we'd all hop in the van turn the radio on we were off to see the work wake up at ten to do it all again til the sun goes down cuz this is all we know

this is the last soooo-oong
