You can through away your expectations now
And all the things you wouldn't say out loud
There's nothing left to pick apart now
The cards are all down
And now you know the sound of my heart when it hits
the paper
There's not more mystery here
This is the last song

I remember when we first became a band
We'd drive all night and talk about the world
I remember when we used to now and then
Just sit and wonder, where it all would go

This is the last song (the last song)
So everybody sing along
This is the last song

This is the last song (the last song)
So everybody sing along
This is the last song

You can through away your expectations now
And all the things you wouldn't say out loud
The cards are all down
And now you know the sound of my heart when it hits
the paper
There's not more mystery here
This is the last song

I remember when we first became a band
We'd set up in the back room and practice all night long
I remember when we used to now and then
Keep the neighborhood up by the sounds of our guitars
I remember when we'd all jump in the van
Turn teh radio on, we were of to see the world
Wake up at 10 to do it all again
'Till the sun goes down, 'cuz this is all we know

This is the last song (the last song)

So everybody sing along
This is the last song

This is the last song (the last song)
So everybody sing along
This is the last song

I remember when we first became a band
We'd drive all night and talk about the world
I remember when we used to now and then
Just sit and wonder, where it all would go

This is the last song (the last song)
So everybody sing along
This is the last song

This is the last song (the last song)
So everybody sing along
This is the last song
