I hope you're doing fine out there without me
'Cause I'm not doing so good without you
The things I've thought you'd never know about me
Were the things I guess you always understood

So how could I have been so blind for all these years?
Guess I only see the truth through all this fear
And living without you, and everything I had in this world
And all that I'll ever be, it could all fall down around me
Just as long as I have you right here by me

I can't take another day without you
'Cause baby, I could never make it on my own
I've been waiting so long just to hold you
And to be back in your arms where I belong

Sorry I can't always find the words to say
But everything I've ever known gets swept away
Inside of your love and everything I had in this world
And all that I'll ever be it could all fall down around me
Just as long as I have you right here by me

As the days grow long I see
That time is standing still for me
When you're not here

Sorry I can't always find the words to say
Everything I've ever known gets swept away
Inside of your love everything I had in this world
And all that I'll ever be it could all fall down around me
Just as long as I have you right here by me
And everything I had in this world
And all that I'll ever be it could all fall down around me
Just as long as I have you right here by me
