all my life been holding on to nothing all my hopes were castles in the sand i've read words with no comprehension i've had dreams i don't understand here i am falling down all i want is a comforting hand giving the same as anybody out there living on guilt 'stead of living on prayer keep the fire lit i'm making that change for you kicking the ground with every step that i take letting you down with every promise i break don't let go i'm making that change for you time goes on to help you find the answers why you're alive and where you go life goes on but you don't stop to wonder what there is that you still don't know here i am growing old i've got to hold that comforting hand

giving the same as anybody out there
letting you down with every promise i break
