[lines in brackets are sung by Dan Swanö]

climb the wall and leave it all behind [climb the wall and leave it all behind] 4x you've got so much on your table and I know that you are able but you're hiding in your cradle trying to rock it all away you're sailing where the driftwood goes you're falling from the sky like stone you're the lifeline not the dead zone the foundation not the headstone many things you need to let go many things you need to start and I know that your dependants may be pleased with your attention but I know it's worth a mention that it's tearing them apart and sometimes it's a hard road

chorus:
maybe it's elusive (so hard to find your way) but you know just what the truth is (you feel it everyday) and maybe it's intrusive (won't seem to go away) but you know you've got to do it (let go of yesterday) until it's done

showed you wisdom showed you wonders that you cannot pull asunder and there's no curse that you're under cuz it's over, gone away

now you have all you need all your stores are full, your wings are strong now it's time to compete you can run the race and carry on

climb the wall and leave it all behind [climb the wall and leave it all behind] 4x

elusive
elusive
elusive...
