[lines in brackets are sung by Dan Swanö] are you drifting, is there nowhere to go life support is down and your systems low are you cruising on your secondary cells waiting for the bell (oh do you really think so) flatline your illusory mind dreams are for the bold and you're not that kind disappointment has a house on that road best to stay at home

you're safe and warm inside your chances pass you by the question fills your mind

chorus:
are you caught in the slipstream are you lost in the fog can you see through the windscreen are you sure it's safe to follow somebody's taillight are you already lost when you get to the daylight will you recognise the world you walked across are you listening with your head in the sand drown the words you don't want to understand 'til the sound stops, is it safe to come out nobody's about

too late now there's nowhere to go
life support is down and your systems low and your fuel light says you'll never get home now you're all alone

you're scared to stay inside your chances pass you by

penny for the dreams you thought you'd lost penny for the peace you thought you'd see penny for the price you thought it'd cost penny for the one you thought you'd see pity for the times you kept it all pity for the wealth you thought you'd get pity for the day your empire falls pity for the day your life got caught
