she takes her clothes off and she says is it alright if i stay the night i don't remember what i said
is it alright
well she's gone when i awake left a letter saying everything was a mistake and I'm alone but it's alright, cause i understand i could tell everything's not fine it's never alright to push away I'm not as blind as you may think and I'm tired of all that is and i know that this time it's not all in my head

you look a little unhappy about the way the world is turning is there anything i could do to take your mind off
the troubled hearted kind and she said maybe, just maybe you wont end up like him it's just another day, its cold and I'm losing myself inside the colors on the wall are all fading and all thats left is a hope for another day that's not cold again and it's a shame you look a little unhappy a bout the way the world is turning

must have been around midnight there's a ghost at the door she said please o slowly, 'Cause we've all been here before

is it alright if i stay the night
i don't remember what i said
