robin goodfellow
diana, my muse
morpheus in my heart
your sand in my veins
it's a deeper kind of slumber what is universe anyway but a pouch of silver coins the intense breathing of a dying animal a foreboding of afterlife master keys in oaken chest the somewhere is mine and from there i'll continue all i asked for was a little love meet me on the other side where as a rose i will wake though blind i'll follow every step you take
diana, my solitude cease to exist, rise to exist no more
