"White Homes"

Visit "White Homes" on MotoLyrics.com

White frame lies to live in leave, nothing to gain
Your Colorless divinities can scarcely light the way White frame homes in celibate rows, they swell and melt together
Aspirations lie in possessions each dwellers dream so similar

Keep witches behind, mythical lines
And squeeze my faith between my knees
I can't take one more lie, so I'll take one of each

In this static heat, I barely make my home suffice
Persuaded by a sleepy beat, I can't tell which is mine

Pack it in, save it up
Pack it in, save it up

In this static heat, I barely make my home suffice
Persuaded by a sleepy beat, I can't tell which is mine Impeded by machine, awash in blue light spending nights
Imbibing life through their screen it shows me to
