So there I stood in the crowd with my heart breaking while you said goodbye to me in a language I understand You underestimate how intelligent I am you treat me like those young schoolgirls whose hearts you play with like Barbie dolls

And here I stand, my prince charming was a false alarm
Who turned love away to even up a score
And here I stand, my prince charming was a false
alarm
Who turned love away to even up a score
the kind of love they write about the kind of love we both sing about the kind of love people would lay their lives down just to taste
the kind of love most people only dream about it was a false alarm
it was a false alarm

All you had to do was speak not try to manipulate me I told you I needed honesty And gave time to tie your loose ends up I was on my way I just wanted things done right No hearts should ever been broken in the crossfire Let me spell it out
I wouldn't make myself a cheat Was I too noble?
Are you too impatient for love? or do you think you are so glorious that love should bow at your feet?

And here I stand, my prince charming was a false
alarm
Who turned love away to even up a score
And here I stand, my prince charming was a false
alarm
Who turned love away to even up a score

the kind of love people would lay their lives down just
to taste
the kind of love most people only dream about
it was a false alarm
it was a false alarm
it was a false alarm
it was a false alarm
it was a false alarm
it was a false alarm
it was a false alarm
it was a false alarm
