Run and tell your mother your heart's gone, you're her setting son Were you robbed today?
My shallow pockets march the deep parade Doctors are songs that never get sung the debt gets high, it thinks it's won Will you rob today?
By keeping brains alive
the tired bodies never sleep

A tired life of thinking got no one to blame
so you tell stories
'til it's all blurry Strong man seems made of straw sidewalk, the street sees you spending your time smashing radios, the serial time killer

Speak so I can hear you I wanna know, but the TV's on who you robbed today our short attentions march in lemming parades

All in robes,
And getting old,
hands raised in clean white clothes
And no one owes us anything...it's easy so banks and lawyers made heaven free

And sleep could raise the dead And time
could have them all marching

Clean me off, I just want to care again Clean me off, I've been digging graves again

Picture me, giving up
Time breeds killers

Time breeds killers
