Forgive me this my one princess forgive what's in my eyes I hate that we should be suspect to the weight of these goodbyes

And would you rather turn away and fade into the sun wipe the tears from my eyes and say my darling, you're not the one

And this well proportioned sympathy with it's standard churned out lies has done so much to cover me like the night obscures the sky

The rain obscures the tears that fell because they're nothing you should see witness this to live and tell burn my pain into your memory

Forgive me that I've held on too long can't make it go away forgive me that I'm not as strong
can't make it go away

Forgive the way it tortures me
can't make it go away
touch my hands and set me free please make it go away

I witness this infidelity with the cameras in my eyes I see you with such clarity God, I wish that I was blind

I see you with these camera eyes I see you in his arms
I watch the thrill that's in your eyes God, I wish that I was wrong
