I see that shiny plane up in the steel gray sky Movin' faster than the speed of sound It don't care about a thing, it just keeps passing by Oblivious to everything that's down
If I was on a cloud then I could hitch a ride That's how I would finally get to you I'd grab on to the wing and at the perfect time I'd open up my parachute Sail--ing thru the sky...Soar---ing way up high

Chorus:

When you think you've had enough of all this living on your own
And you feel you're just about to break in two When you're stuck in overdrive and you're longing for home
It's time to change your attitude
And open up your parachute

See the raindrops pounding on my windowpane Tapping out their rhythms from above They don't pay any mind to those alone within thinking 'bout the ones they love And 52 floors up above the city lights/stranded in my temporary nest

The hotel operator she says, "have a good night"
I lay down, close my eyes, and do my best Fit--full sleepless nights dream--in' I can fly

Chorus:

When you think you've had enough of all this living on
your own
And you feel you're just a-bout to break in two When you're stuck in overdrive and you're longing for home Come down to earth and change your mood
Open up your parachute (Instrumental Break)

Fit--full sleepless nights
dream--in' I can fly

Chorus:

When you think you've had enough of all this living on
your own
When you're stuck in overdrive and you're longing for

home
It's time to change your altitude
and open up
your parachute
mood.
hey, open up your parachute..
