Don't mess with me, don't mess with me Unless you're here to tell me you love me Now, tell me you love me or tell me you love... Well, anything will do, just not the truth... With the door closed, I just find me a corner To post up and start crying in till all the Veins in my eyes run dry Meditating on the latest stage in my life Then I force closed what my mind sends upon the Poor soul, which I've fought with the longest Complaining about the life outside When I made it how I carry hatred inside That sends out signals switched and mixed emotion Twisting up my feelings like an endless rope which I'm planning to be hanging from tonight Separating from the very state of living life When no one can console me no more than try to hold me And only seem to escalate the situation going Directly to an end, so again, how can I say? I'm living a drama so don't bother me or can I stay a-lone... Don't mess with me, don't mess with me Unless you're here to tell me you love me Now, tell me you love me or tell me you love... Well, anything will do, just not the truth... Light switched up mean it's time I get down And with a cartoon frown I start knocking things down To the ground till I get a little attention From somebody I can throw a tantrum at and be forgiven Until the thought kicks in that I almost lost it Tossing pictures in the light and causing darkness Displaying all the rage I engage in And made into a chain reaction phase I could've changed if-if All that was lost that I caused Could turn to be but all just a thought in the fog But unluckily, rewinding and time aren't fond of each other Not that I would bribe a simple bond But I'm stuck between a wall and a fall and I'm definitely lost How can a problem be solved if it's self and resolved into an end But again, how can I say, I'm living a drama So it's probably at best I stay a-lone... Don't mess with me, don't mess with me Unless you're here to tell me you love me Now, tell me you love me or tell me you love... Well, anything will do, just not the truth... Mainly pain could never touch me I was something like a stainless frame and then abruptly The picture faded and memories painted Began to dissipate and I appeared to be changing But I ain't even recognize it till the end And I was swiftly on my way beneath the ground for reprimand Demons, I could see them and practically breathe in the Atmosphere of evil, death in hours at a glance But I'm not gon' let that stop me, no sir I'd rather go home dead as a problem to both worlds Than to live as the protagonist of hatred and anger Taking years away from moments like I'm flaming tobacco Making an absolutely small thing a disaster And I can't capture moods, just how they make me react And nearing the end again, how can I say I'm living a drama and most likely all the rest of my days a-lone... Don't mess with me, don't mess with me Unless you're here to tell me you love me Now, tell me you love me or tell me you love... Well, anything will do, just not the truth...
