Have you heard the people calling who are hungry in the night have you heard the prayers of soldiers who are weary from the fight have you heard the voice of wisdom in a time of pure deceit have you heard the path to freedom is a road you rise to meet have you heard the bonds of slavery are forged with paper chains and the red sun that's rising sets on all of us the same unless we stand together now, we all will surely fall I heard the call in the words of Dr. Paul have you ever seen a country bent and broken on it's knees or a line ten miles long of hungry homeless begging please or a banking institution funding both sides of a war or it's chairman spouting lies upon the House committee floor have you ever seen a talking head on television sway the people through deception telling lies to earn his pay cant you feel the ground shake these institution walls well i'll watch them fall when i stand with Dr. Paul now let the people learn to reason now let them stand up on their own now let the light of revolution bring it home now let the rights of man come shining bright in self-evidence and truth and let each one of you be counted as you stand for the one who stands for you well they say that truth is treason in the empire of lies that the enemies of freedom are all cleverly disguised the temples made of marble where the corporations reign and the only ones that benefit stand far above the pain as the people battle poverty, depression, and disease and a crisis turns to meltdown and the liquid starts to freeze but the printing press is roaring, leaving trillions in it's wake and history won't forgive those who don't learn from their mistakes as the rights of individuals are stripped down more and more and we all can finally see the hidden face behind the war unless we stand together now, this fate will touch us all and stand free and tall as we march for Dr. Paul we march for Dr. Paul

we march for Dr. Paul
