

Living End, The "All Torn Down"

Visit "All Torn Down" on MotoLyrics.com

I see the city and it isn't what it used to be

A million houses goin' up and down in front of me

No time to let the concrete set before it's broken up again

Don't care if it's historic - don't really care at all

A hidden landscape on the brink of a development

A protest rally never satisfied with development

Both striving for a perfect world

Each having their own opinion

Don't care if it's historic; don't really care at all

All Torn Down

I see the city and it's grown into a big machine

The streets are freeways and the parks are just a memory

No time to let the concrete set before it's broken up
again

Don't care if it's historic; don't really care at all

All Torn Down

You've got no reason

Visit Living End, The page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.