Let me tell you the hard luck story

About a man named Jack McDuff

He believed in God and glory

But he just wasn't tough enough

I believe in the freedom song

Long live liberty!

I believe in the freedom song

I'll choose my own destiny

Well they took him and they beat him

Underneath the old hanging tree

Saying, "Jack, you must die"

"What will your last words be?"

Jack, he hung his head back

"Long live liberty!"

"I believe in the freedom song"

"Doesn't matter what you do to me"

With a rope around his neck they left him hanging

High on that old hanging tree

On her knees his wife was screaming

"Lord have mercy, Lord have mercy"

I believe in the freedom song

Long live liberty!

I believe in the freedom song

Doesn't matter what you do to me
