It didn't suffer wrapped by silence
This love when it died
I just realized
That I lost
But what have I lost?
Staying together isn't a game
Maybe I lost just you
And I look again through
The dull yellow light of a sunset
The hill where we once pretended that it was eternal

We didn't care about anybody else
Just faces? just people?
Spectators of a scene
We were sorry for them
You were like gold
Now you're like them
You were like gold
Now you're like them

Nobody has got into my golden Limbo ever since an abandoned kitten feeling cold? tired?

We didn't care about anybody else
Just faces? just people?
Spectators of a scene
We were sorry for them
You were like gold
Now you're like them
You were like gold
Now you're like them

And every kiss you've denied is something you've lost of me
And every "I love you" I didn't say, is something I've lost of you
And every silent smile of yours was a picture of us And every tired glance was the end already it's better to break it off, I agree

And it's funny you felt so well
And now your grateful for being less fragile
And I'll hear from you soon, "call me" ? it should be like that

We didn't care about anybody else
Just faces? just people?
Spectators of a scene
We were sorry for them
You were like gold
Now you're like them
You were like gold
Now you're like them
