Tonight, tonight I'll see the ocean
I'll walk in to the water for the first time
So far, so far away
From this dead empty town I should feel great
But I don't
Yeah I should've known
Better than to come so far alone

I used to wonder where I'd be
If the roads we led went somewhere different
If we had never met would my life
Tear me down or make me stronger?

An evening spent on the coast alone
Taking cheer from the warmer weather
Well I could stay inside tonight but
How could I waste a day that feels like summer?

Tonight, tonight I'll see the ocean
I'll walk in to the water for the first time
So far, so far away
From this dead empty town I should feel great
But I don't
Yeah I should've known
Better than to come so far alone

As the waves roll in
I can't help but think about the weekends
At the windmills
And walking down
The streets of my hometown
It doesn't feel right (doesn't feel right)
Seeing this without you
As far as I can go and back again
To my closest friends
