I've got the pictures of the memories of running with
the gang.

Black and white on paper, but in my head the colors
never fade.

That was before, when nothing else took precedence
over saving the world.

We used to draw lines in the sand that none of us would dare to cross.

We'd go on secret missions to stop the villain's plan, at any cost.

That was before, when nothing else took precedence
over saving the world.

When was the last time you, you laughed so hard you
cried?

Don't let these days fly by, because you can't turn back
time, how hard you try.

I've finally given up on being grown.

There's too much life to live before you end.

I've finally given up on being grown.

There's too much to live before you end.

That was before, when nothing else took precedence
over saving the world.

When was the last time you, you laughed so hard you
cried?

Don't let these days fly by, because you can't turn back
time, how hard you try.

When was the last time you, you laughed so hard you
cried?

Don't let these days fly by, because you can't turn back
time, how hard you try.

Don't let these days fly by, because you can't turn back
time, how hard you try.
