I've got a reason
And it sounds like this
Everything has it's season
Well let's bless it with a kiss babe

I'll be there for you
I'll be your rainy day man
Everytime the devil laughs out loud
When we make our big plans

And you might come to realize
What you haven't missed yet
When everyone's searching for fortune and fame
It's been right in front of you all of the time

Everything comes round and round
What goes up must soon come down
Just remember this my friend
The next time that it looks like rain

I heard a rumbling
It was a frightening sound
We thought the world was crumbling
It was just our wheels spinning round

You might see more action
Born in another age
You'll get more satisfaction
If you don't expect it that way

You might come to realize
What you haven't missed yet
When everyone's searching for fortune and fame
Well it's been right in your face all of the time

Everything comes round and round
What goes up must soon come down
Just remember this my friend
The next time that it looks like rain

Everything comes round and round
What goes up must soon come down

Just remember this my friend
The next time that it looks like rain

I look down the street
And I see the young Matadors
The debutantes from Richmond
Decked out in their fine clothes

It's bred in the bone
A tireless search
The junkyard keeps whispering
"Who'll get there first"

Yeah, yeah, yeah, yeah
Yeah, yeah, yeah, yeah

Everything comes round and round
What goes up must soon come down
You just remember this my friend
The next time that it looks like rain

Everything comes round and round
What goes up must soon come down
But just remember this my friend
The next time that it looks like rain
The next time that it looks like rain
The next time that it looks like rain, again

Everything comes round and round
What goes up must soon come down
Just remember this my friend
The next time that it looks like rain

Everything comes round and round
What goes up must soon come down
But just remember this my friend
The next time that it looks like rain
The next time that it looks like rain
The next time that it looks like rain
