You might feel you're a stranger
Lost in a strange land
You might be on a distant shore
Don't know what they're having planned

You might feel you're a million miles
In nothing you can be sure
You might feel you don't have a friend
When the signal it comes in clear

That you're not so far
You're not so far away

You might feel you're in danger
And you hope you don't fade away
Sometimes you try to reach so high
You think that your back might break

The signals out someone's in doubt
When something inside you says

That you're not so far
You're not so far away
No, you're not so far
You're not so far away

Lay it in those hands
You might not know where you stand
You walk that line and some might tell you
This is where it starts and ends

When history repeats itself
They're saying that worn out plan

Well you're not so far
You're not so far away
Now you're not so far
You're not so far away

Not so far
You're not so far away
Not so far

You're not so far away
You're not so far away
You're not so far away
You're not so far away
You're not so far away
You're not so far
