

Lyrics by Curtis Catie

"Just Getting By"

Visit "Just Getting By" on MotoLyrics.com

I woke up this morning, blankets thick like my tongue My thinking still tangled, couldn't get the words to come Yesterday I could fly, forgot to come back to the ground
You watched me in the sky, knowing how I always circle down
And when I'm just getting by, that's when I see myself a fool
When I'm just getting by, that's when I thank god for you There's snow on my windshield and I'm hours from home
I crack my window open and think of you asleep and warm
I was just singing, forgot to come back to the ground
And with my ears ringing, I'll try not to make a sound
And when I'm just getting by, that's when I see myself a
fool
When I'm just getting by, that's when I thank god for
you
I felt like crying to your half-asleep heart
No reason, really, sometimes I just fall apart
It used to scare you when I'd come back to the ground Now you just hold me, knowing how I always circle around
And when I'm just getting by, that's when I see myself a
fool
When I'm just getting by, that's when I thank god for
you

Visit Lyrics by Curtis Catie page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.