It's a big house on a hilltop fine carpets on the floor Expensive polished marble are the steps up to the door Vines are climbin' up to the roof top as if there's something they'd like to hide People call it the Fool's Castle and I'm the fool that lives
inside
The girl is gone that warmed the castle now it's dark the flame has died
It's a big house on a hilltop without love without pride People call it the Fool's Castle and I'm the fool that lives
[ steel ]
She used to live here I thought she was lucky she had what most girls only dream of I gave her diamonds silk and satin I gave her everything but love
And with my givin' I gave her nothin' she wanted only to be by my side Yes they call it the Fool's Castle and I'm the fool that lives inside
The girl is gone...
