well its snowin again and what can I say its been another one of them nowhere days and oh Id like to blame it all on the weather theres an old black cat out in the snow black cat he dont know where to go and I cant say Im doing any better and the popcorn man across the street hes standing there watching his popcorn freeze and all his shiny candy apples cracking but hes not like me no he dont complain he just keeps at it in the snow and rain stampin his feet by his rickety painted wagon dont you know my friend Stephen that the blues without a name theyre the worst of all Ive looked for reasons and theres either a thousand or theres none at all hey will you be there if I call now I know theres a lesson in the popcorn man with his turned-up collar and his raw red hands but somehow it doesnt offer much consolation well if only life was like the radio then me and the black cat out in the snow wed waste no time tuning in to some other station oh are you listening to me Stephen can I come and stay with you until winters end I know well never be lovers like we were back then again but right now Id settle for a good friend

well its snowin again and what can I say
its been another one of them nowhere days and still I couldnt tell you what it is Im lacking (all I know is) once upon the sunshine shone but now the popcorn days are gone and all those candy apple dreams are cracking thinking bout Stephen and the black cat and the popcorn man and me
