well it rained so hard in my dreams last night that when I woke I thought the streets would be wet and you loved me so sweetly in my dreams last night I dont know how Ill ever forget oh something about you has touched me so deep that I cant get away from it even in sleep thought I try, oh I try but when I woke up this morning I woke up alone and the pavement outside was as dry as a bone it was only my cheeks that were wet guess Im still not over you yet well I tried to find a little peace of mind in the day I locked up all my memories tight but like a thief in the darkness who is sure of the way you stole back to trouble my nights

I could swear that Im holding you there as I sleep and I sigh, oh can you hear me sigh but when I woke up this morning I woke up alone and the pillow beside me was hard as a stone and all I could find was regret guess Im still not over you yet they say that we learn every time we get burned so how come the older we grow the wounds go deeper and deeper and the heart doesnt want to let go

well it rained so hard in my dreams last night
that when I woke I thought the streets would be wet
and you loved me so sweetly in my dreams last night
and the pavement outside was as dry as a bone
